(b) if so, what are the reasons therefor;

(c) whether Central or State Governments have any programmes to involve the registered medical unqualified practitioners to provide basic health facilities and to run national programmes after providing the basic training to them;

(d) if not, whether Government will take any initiative in this direction involving RMPs to solve the problem; and

(e) if so, the details thereof?

However, this Ministry of Health and Family Welfare has been advising the State Governments from time to time to see to it that vacancies are filled up on priority basis.

(c) to (e) At present, there is no such proposal under consideration of the Central Government. As regards the State Government (s), no information is maintained.
